ANSWERS AND RESPONSES TO PLAINTIFFS' FIRST SET OF REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION, INTERROGATORIES, AND REQUESTS FOR PRODCUTION TO DEFENDANTS MONTOYA, BARELA, HOUSTON, MARCANTEL, AND EDEN

COMES NOW Defendants Daniel Montoya, Susan Barela, Troy Ruplinger, Secretary Gregg Marcantel, and Secretary Gordon E. Eden (hereinafter, "State Defendants") by and through their Counsel of Record, Park & Anderson, L.L.C. (Alfred A. Park and Lawrence M. Marcus) and hereby Respond to Plaintiffs' Motion to Compel Answers and Responses to Plaintiffs' First Set of Requests for Admission, Interrogatories, and Requests for Production. For their Response, State Defendants STATE AS FOLLOWS:

I. INTRODUCTION

Plaintiff Ray Brown brought the present case on February 2, 2010 for alleged violations of substantive due process, procedural due process, and equal protection, and for injunctive relief under the New Mexico and federal constitutions. Plaintiff Brown originally brought the case against Officer Montoya and then Secretary of Corrections Joe Williams. Officer Montoya and Secretary Williams moved to dismiss the case. The Motion was denied, so they filed an interlocutory appeal on all damages claims to the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals. The Tenth Circuit reversed all damages claims against Secretary Williams, as well as the substantive due process and equal protection claims against Officer Montoya, leaving only the procedural due process claims against Officer Montoya, and a claim for injunctive relief against both Officer Montoya and Secretary Williams, who had, by that time, been replaced as Corrections Secretary. Plaintiff then amended the Complaint to add claims for injunctive relief by a second Plaintiff, Kenji Ausborn. Plaintiff also replaced Secretary Williams as a Defendant with the current corrections secretary, Gregg Marcantel, and added claims for injunctive relief against the secretary of the New Mexico Department of Public Safety, Gordon Eden.

On July 30, 2012, Plaintiffs served interrogatories, requests for production, and requests for admission on State Defendants. State Defendants obtained a short extension for response, and served responses on Plaintiffs on September 7, 2012. Because much of Plaintiffs' discovery request was clearly inappropriate, due to irrelevance, undue burden, and/or seeking legal conclusions, State Defendants included numerous objections to the discovery request. Plaintiffs then filed the instant Motion on September 28, 2012, disputing State Defendants' "boilerplate" objections, objections pertaining to non-parties required to register as sex offenders, and certain objections to Plaintiffs Requests for Admission. As will be noted below, all of State Defendants objections are well-taken, so the Motion should be denied.

II. LEGAL STANDARD FOR DISCOVERY

While the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure do allow for a broad scope of discovery, this scope is not unlimited. Indeed, discovery is limited to any “nonprivileged matter that is relevant to any party's claim or defense.” Fed. R. Civ. P. Rule 26(b)(1). Prior to 2000, the rules allowed for discovery of matters relevant to the “subject matter” of the litigation, the 2000 Amendments changed the standard to only allow discovery of material relevant to “any party’s claim or defense.” Advisory Committee Note on 2000 Amendments to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Rule 26(b)(1). This demonstrates an intent to narrow the scope of discovery. Moreover, even relevant information can be excluded if it is unduly burdensome to a party, particularly if the party seeking discovery can obtain the information by other means. Fed. R. Civ. P. Rule 26 (b)(2)(C). Finally, the purpose of discovery is to seek facts, rather than legal conclusions. Tobacco & Allied Socks v. Transamerica Corp., 16 F.R.D. 537, 541 (D. Del. 1954), citing 4 Moore's Federal Practice (2d Ed.) at 2303–07. It is thus inappropriate for a party to, for instance, propound requests for admission that require the opposing party to admit or deny a legal conclusion. In the present case, for the above reasons, all of State Defendants’ objections to Plaintiff’s discovery request were appropriate. Accordingly, Plaintiffs’ Motion to Compel should be denied.

III. SECRETARY EDEN’S “BOILERPLATE” OBJECTIONS ARE APPROPRIATE

Plaintiffs served several Interrogatories to which State Defendants objected on the grounds of overbreadth and the fact that they sought proprietary documents. These objections were appropriate. Secretary Eden objected to Plaintiff’s Interrogatory No. 5 on the grounds that it sought information regarding the identities of every person at the New Mexico Department of Public Safety responsible for identifying persons as sex offenders since 2007. This request is clearly overbroad. Plaintiffs' claim against the Department of Public Safety is limited to a claim for injunctive relief removing them from the sex offender registry. Because Plaintiffs do not seek damages against Department of Public Safety personnel, this Interrogatory is clearly overbroad. First, the decision to classify Plaintiffs as sex offenders occurred, according to Plaintiffs' Complaint, in 2009. The identities of persons involved with sex offender classification before and after that time is irrelevant to Plaintiffs' Complaint, as will be argued below, it is part of an elaborate fishing expedition, and is not condoned by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Secondly, Plaintiffs' claim against Secretary Eden is limited to injunctive relief. In order to resolve these claims, it is only necessary to determine whether Plaintiffs' sex offender classifications are constitutional and whether the Department of Public Safety continues to so classify Plaintiff as a sex offender. The chain of command within the Department of Public Safety is entirely irrelevant to both of these questions. Accordingly, this objection should be upheld.

Secondly, Plaintiff also contends that Secretary Eden's objection regarding Requests for Production No. 1, 2, 3, 4, and 6 is simply a "boilerplate" objection. However, in his Responses, Secretary Eden described the exact reason why the withheld documents are not discoverable. Secretary Eden withheld documents responsive to these request for production because they are NCIC printouts. The Nation Crime Information Center (NCIC) operated by the FBI, maintains a national database regarding crimes and criminals throughout the country. The FBI has clearly stated that "Data stored in the NCIC is documented criminal justice agency information and access to that data is restricted to duly authorized criminal justice agencies." FBI Fact Sheet on NCIC, attached as Exh. A to this Response. Submission of this data would be in violation of federal law, so Secretary Eden reasonably objected to this Request. Accordingly, Plaintiffs Motion to Compel must be denied as it pertains to the “boiler plate” objections.

IV. STATE DEFENDANTS’ OBJECTIONS REGARDING REQUESTS PERTAINING TO NON-PARTIES ARE APPROPRIATE

Also contrary to Plaintiff’s contentions, State Defendants objections to Plaintiffs request regarding non-parties required to register as sex offenders are appropriate. Plaintiffs contest Secretary Eden’s objections to Interrogatories 5 and 6, and Requests for Production 1 and 5. Plaintiffs also contest Officer Montoya’s objection to Interrogatory No. 4. All of the above discovery requests request information regarding all persons required to register as sex offenders for false imprisonment or kidnapping after between 2007 and the present. These discovery requests are clearly overbroad, because they encompass information that is entirely immaterial to the present case.

Indeed, as Plaintiffs note, and as stated above, the Amendment changes the scope of discovery from matters relevant to the subject matter of the litigation to matters relevant to “any party’s claim or defense.” Indeed, the Advisory Committee Notes say that the 2000 Amendments “signals to the parties that they have no entitlement to discovery to develop new claims or defenses that are not already identified in the pleadings.” By requesting discovery regarding non-parties who have been required to register as sex offenders, Plaintiffs are attempting to do precisely that: to gain information regarding other potential plaintiffs. There is no other conceivable reason why Plaintiffs have propounded discovery pertaining to non-parties. Indeed, “discovery may not be used as a fishing expedition to discovery additional instances of wrongdoing beyond those already alleged.” Wells Fargo Bank, N.A. v. Konover, 2009 WL 585430 at 5. See also American Roller Co., L.L.C. v. Foster-Adams Leasing, L.L.P., 2006 WL 1371441; Brigham Young University v. Pfizer, 2010 WL 2598394. There is no evidence that the classification of other individuals as sex offenders is relevant, in any way, to Plaintiff's specific claims.

Plaintiffs claim that the information regarding other persons classified as sex offenders is relevant because it relates to the chain of command or organizational structure of the Department of Corrections, the Department of Public Safety, and Bernalillo County. Plaintiffs argue that information regarding these chains of command is relevant, because State Defendants have allegedly been "passing the buck" regarding responsibility for the classification of convicts as sex offenders. Their unnecessary rhetorical flourish aside, Plaintiffs' argument is utterly meritless.

First, State Defendants have not been "passing the buck." Secretary Eden admits that the final decision regarding whether a person is required to register as a sex offender is made by the New Mexico Department of Public Safety using information obtained from several sources, including the New Mexico Department of Corrections and the county where the suspected sex offender resides. While the decision regarding probation conditions is made by the New Mexico Department of Corrections, representatives of the Corrections Department state that the decision is made based on the decision made by the Department of Public Safety to require a probationer to register as a sex offender. The chain of command regarding this process was made sufficiently clear by the discovery responses of all of the defendants. Further, discovery regarding other persons required to register as sex offenders is completely irrelevant to Plaintiffs' questions regarding the chain of command.

The cases cited by Plaintiffs, Sanyo Laser Products, Inc. v. Arista Records, Inc., 214 F.R.D. 496 (S.D. Ind. 2003) and Martinez v. Cornell Corrections of Texas, 229 F.R.D. 215

(D.N.M. 2005), are immaterial to the present case. The discovery request in Sanyo concerned potential affiliates of the defendant, who may have been liable for the plaintiff's specific claims. 214 F.R.D. at 498. Thus, the information sought in Sanyo was directly relevant to a party's claims or defenses. In the present case, plaintiffs are seeking information about persons unconnected with any Plaintiffs' specific claims; rather, they concern other persons allegedly required to register as sex offenders. Moreover, Martinez involved a claim that required the plaintiff to show that the defendant "had a policy, custom, or practice of deliberate indifference to detainees' constitutional rights." 229 F.R.D. at 219. Thus, other instances of the alleged misconduct were relevant in that they could help establish a policy or a custom. By contrast, in the present case, Plaintiffs have not brought any claims for municipal or supervisory liability against any of the State Defendants in their Amended Complaint. Plaintiff's only claims against supervisory officials are for injunctive relief. Accordingly, the only conceivable purpose of Plaintiffs' discovery request, as it pertains to non-parties required to register as sex offenders, is to develop claims not originally brought in the Complaint. Therefore, Plaintiffs motion to compel should be denied as to those interrogatories and requests for production.

Finally, contrary to Plaintiffs contentions, the fact that much of the information sought by Plaintiffs is public is not an argument for allowing discovery of this information. For instance, any information sought by Plaintiffs regarding publicly disclosed sex offender registries can be compiled by Plaintiffs with no more effort than would be required for State Defendants to compile this same information. Moreover, if the subject of the discovery would be appropriately disclosed in response to a request under IPRA, then Plaintiffs have the option of filing such a request. Quite simply, there is no reason why State Defendants should be required to provide the requested information through discovery. Accordingly, Plaintiffs Motion to Compel should be denied as it pertains to the sex offender status of non-parties.

V. PLAINTIFFS MOTION TO COMPEL RESPONSE TO REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION IS INAPPROPRIATE

Finally, Plaintiffs moved to compel State Defendants to respond to several requests for admission to which they had objected, on the basis, inter alia, that these requests for admission sought a legal conclusion. However, Plaintiffs' Motion to Compel Responses to these Requests for Admission should not be well-taken for several reasons.

First, while Plaintiffs are correct that an application of law to the unique facts of the case is an appropriate subject for a request for admission, Requests for Admission 1 and 2 to both Secretary Marcantel and Secretary Eden did not ask for such an application. Rather, they asked pure questions of law. Indeed, one of the cases cited by Plaintiffs clearly states that "[a] request may be said to call for a legal conclusion when it purports to require a party to admit, for example, that a statute or regulation imposes a particular obligation." Miller v. Holzmänn, 240 F.R.D. 1, 5 (D.D.C. 2006). All four of the Requests for Admission in question require State Defendants to admit such an obligation. Request for Admission No. 1 to both Secretary Marcantel and Secretary Eden ask them to admit that their duty includes determining the content of various policies of their respective departments. Request for Admission No. 2 to each secretary asks that to admit that they are responsible for assuring compliance of the policies with state and federal law. The Requests for Admission do not ask for an application of the law to any specific set of facts. Thus, all of these Requests for Admission are requests for legal conclusions, and are not appropriate to answer.

Moreover, even assuming, ad arguendo, that these Requests for Admission do not seek admission of pure legal conclusions, it is still inappropriate to compel answers to Requests for Admission No. 2 to either secretary. Both Secretary Eden and Secretary Marcantel objected to these requests for admission on the grounds of irrelevance as well as legal conclusion. Plaintiffs did not address the irrelevance objections in his Motion to Compel, and the time period for addressing these objections has passed. District of New Mexico Local Rule LR-CV 26.6. Accordingly, Plaintiffs are deemed to have consented to this objection, so Secretaries Eden and Marcantel should not be compelled to answer these Requests in any event. Accordingly, Plaintiffs Motion to Compel must be denied as to all of the Requests for Admission in question.

VI. CONCLUSION

For the reasons stated above, every one of State Defendants objections is well-taken. Accordingly, State Defendants Daniel Montoya, Susan Barela, Troy Ruplinger, Secretary Gregg Marcantel, and Secretary Gordon E. Eden respectfully request that this Honorable Court deny Plaintiffs Motion to Compel as to them in its entirety.

National Crime Information Center (NCIC)

National Crime Information Center
Criminal Justice Information Services (CJIS) Division
1000 Custer Hollow Road
Clarksburg, West Virginia 26306
Hours of Service: 9:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.
Telephone: (304) 625-2000

NCIC is a computerized index of criminal justice information (i.e.- criminal record history information, fugitives, stolen properties, missing persons). It is available to Federal, state, and local law enforcement and other criminal justice agencies and is operational 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

PURPOSE: The purpose for maintaining the NCIC system is to provide a computerized database for ready access by a criminal justice agency making an inquiry and for prompt disclosure of information in the system from other criminal justice agencies about crimes and criminals. This information assists authorized agencies in criminal justice and related law enforcement objectives, such as apprehending fugitives, locating missing persons, locating and returning stolen property, as well as in the protection of the law enforcement officers encountering the individuals described in the system.

ACCESS CONSTRAINTS: All records in NCIC are protected from unauthorized access through appropriate administrative, physical, and technical safeguards. These safeguards include restricting access to those with a need to know to perform their official duties, and using locks, alarm devices, passwords, and/or encrypting data communications.

USE CONSTRAINTS: Users of the NCIC system will be restricted to only those privileges necessary to perform an authorized task(s).

AGENCY PROGRAM: The FBI is authorized to acquire, collect, classify and preserve identification, criminal identification, crime, and other records and to exchange such information with authorized entities.

SOURCES OF DATA: Data contained in NCIC is provided by the FBI, federal, state, local and foreign criminal justice agencies, and authorized courts.

The most recent iteration of NCIC became operational on July 11, 1999 at the FBI's Criminal Justice Information Services Division in Clarksburg, West Virginia. A recent hardware upgrade to the NCIC system is responsible for this significant improvement in performance.

The agency originating the "Temporary Felony Want" shall be responsible for subsequent verification or re-entry of a permanent want.

Authority for maintenance of the system: The system is established and maintained in accordance with 28 U.S.C. 534; Department of Justice Appropriation Act, 1973, Pub. L. 92-544, 86 Stat. 1115, Securities Acts Amendment of 1975, Pub. L. 94-29, 89 Stat. 97; and 18 U.S.C. Sec. 924 (e). Exec. Order No. 10450, 3 CFR (1974).

Purpose(s): The purpose for maintaining the NCIC system of record is to provide a computerized data base for ready access by a criminal justice agency making an inquiry and for prompt disclosure of information in the system from other criminal justice agencies about crimes and criminals. This information assists authorized agencies in criminal justice objectives, such as apprehending fugitives, locating missing persons, locating and returning stolen property, as well as in the protection of the law enforcement officers encountering the individuals described in the system.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Data in NCIC files is exchanged with and for the official use of authorized officials of the Federal Government, the States, cities, penal and other institutions, and certain foreign governments. The data is exchanged through NCIC lines to Federal criminal justice agencies, criminal justice agencies in the 50 States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, U.S. Possessions and U.S. Territories. Additionally, data contained in the various "want files," i.e., the stolen vehicle file, stolen license plate file, stolen gun file, stolen article file, wanted person file, securities file, boat file, and missing person data may be accessed by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Criminal history data is disseminated to non-criminal justice agencies for use in connection with licensing for local/state employment or other uses, but only where such dissemination is authorized by Federal or state statutes and approved by the Attorney General of the United States.

Data in NCIC files, other than the information described in "Categories of records in the system: I, J, K, M, N, and O," is disseminated to (1) a nongovernmental agency subunit thereof which allocates a substantial part of its annual budget to the administration of criminal justice, whose regularly employed peace officers have full police powers pursuant to state law and have complied with the minimum employment standards of governmentally employed police officers as specified by state statute; (2) a noncriminal justice governmental department of motor vehicle or driver's license registry established by a statute, which provides vehicles registration and driver record information to criminal justice agencies; (3) a governmental regional dispatch center, established by a state statute, resolution, ordinance or Executive order, which provides communications services to criminal justice agencies; and (4) the national Automobile Theft Bureau, a nongovernmental nonprofit agency which acts as a national clearinghouse for information on stolen vehicles and offers free assistance to law enforcement agencies concerning automobile thefts, identification and recovery of stolen vehicles.

Disclosures of information from this system, as described above, are for the purpose of providing information to authorized agencies to facilitate the apprehension of fugitives, the location of missing persons, the location and/or return of stolen property, or similar criminal justice objectives.

Information on missing children, missing adults who were reported missing while children, and unidentified living and deceased persons may be disclosed to the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC). The NCMEC is a nongovernmental, nonprofit, federally funded corporation, serving as a national resource and technical assistance clearinghouse focusing on missing and exploited children. Information is disclosed to NCMEC to assist it in its efforts to provide technical assistance and education to parents and local governments regarding the problems of missing and exploited children, and to operate a nationwide missing children hotline to permit members of the public to telephone the Center from anywhere in the United States with information about a missing child.

In addition, information may be released to the news media and the public pursuant to 28 CFR 50.2, unless it is determined that release of the specific information in the context of a particular case would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy;

To a Member of Congress or staff acting upon the member's behalf whom the member or staff requests the information on behalf of and at the request of the individual who is the subject of the record; and,

To the National Archives and Records Administration and the General Services Administration in records management inspections conducted under the authority of 44 U.S.C. Sec. Sec. 2904 and 2906.

Safeguards: Data stored in the NCIC is documented criminal justice agency information and access to that data is restricted to duly authorized criminal justice agencies. The following security measures are the minimum to be adopted by all criminal justice agencies having access to the NCIC.

Interstate Identification Index (III) File. These measures are designed to prevent unauthorized access to the system data and/or unauthorized use of data obtained from the computerized file.

1. Computer Center. a. The criminal justice agency computer site must have adequate physical security to protect against any unauthorized personnel gaining access to the computer equipment or to any of the stored data. b. Since personnel at these computer centers can have access to data stored in the system, they must be screened thoroughly under the authority and supervision of an NCIC control terminal agency. (This authority and supervision may be delegated to responsible criminal justice agency personnel in the case of a satellite computer center being serviced through a state control terminal agency.) This screening will also apply to non-criminal justice maintenance or technical personnel. c. All visitors to these computer centers must be accompanied by staff personnel at all times. d. Computers having access to the NCIC must have the proper computer instructions written and other built-in controls to prevent criminal history data from being accessible to any terminals other than authorized terminals. e. Computers having access to the NCIC must maintain a record of all transactions against the criminal history file in the same manner the NCIC computer logs all transactions. The NCIC identifies each specific agency entering or receiving information and maintains a record of those transactions. This transaction record must be monitored and reviewed on a regular basis to detect any possible misuse of criminal history data. f. Each State Control terminal shall build its data system around a central computer, through which each inquiry must pass for screening and verification. The configuration and operation of the center shall provide for the integrity of the data base.

2. Communications: a. Lines/channels being used to transmit criminal history information must be dedicated solely to criminal justice, i.e., there must be no terminals belonging to agencies outside the criminal justice system sharing these lines/channels. b. Physical security of the lines/channels must be protected to guard against clandestine devices being utilized to intercept or inject system traffic.

3. Terminal Devices Having Access to NCIC: a. All agencies having terminals on this system must be required to physically place these terminals in secure locations within the authorized agency. b. The agencies having terminals with access to criminal history must screen terminal operators and restrict access to the terminal to a minimum number of authorized employees. c. Copies of criminal history data obtained from terminal devices must be afforded security to prevent any unauthorized access to or use of the data. d. All remote terminals on NCIC III will maintain a manual or automated log of computerized criminal history inquiries with notations of individuals making requests for records for a minimum of one year.

System manager(s) and address: Director, Federal Bureau of Investigation, J. Edgar Hoover Building, 10th and Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Washington, DC 20535.

Notification procedure: Same as the above.

Record access procedures: It is noted the Attorney General has exempted this system from the access and contest procedures of the Privacy Act. However, the following alternative procedures are available to requester. The procedures by which computerized criminal history record information about an individual may be obtained by that individual are as follows:

If an individual has a criminal record supported by fingerprints and that record has been entered in the NCIC III file, criminal history record information, it is available to that individual for review, upon presentation of appropriate identification and in accordance with applicable State and Federal administrative and statutory regulations. Appropriate identification includes being fingerprinted for the purpose of insuring that the individual is who the individual purports to be. The record on file will then be verified through comparison of fingerprints.

Procedure: 1. All requests for review must be made by the subject of the record through a law enforcement agency which has access to the NCIC III File. That agency within statutory or regulatory limits can require additional identification to assist in securing a positive identification.

2. If the cooperative law enforcement agency can make an identification with fingerprints previously taken which are on file locally and if the FBI identification number of the individual's record is available to that agency, it can make an on-line inquiry of NCIC to obtain the record on-line or, if it does not have suitable equipment to obtain an on-line response, obtain the record from Washington, DC by mail. The individual will then be afforded the opportunity to see that record.

3. Should the cooperating law enforcement agency not have the individual's fingerprints on file locally, it is necessary for that agency to relate the prints to an existing record by having the identification prints compared with those already on file in the FBI or possibly in the State's central identification agency.

Contesting record procedures: The Attorney General has exempted this system from the contest procedures of the Privacy Act. Under this alternative procedure described above under "Record Access Procedures," the subject of the requested record shall request the appropriate arresting agency, court, or correctional agency to initiate action necessary to correct any stated inaccuracy in subject's record or provide the information needed to make the record complete.

Record source categories: Information contained in the NCIC system is obtained from local, state, Federal and international criminal justice agencies.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the Privacy Act: The Attorney General has exempted this system from subsection (c) (3) and (4), (d), (e)(1) (2), and (3), (e)(4) (G), (H), (e)(5), (e)(8) and (g) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) and (k)(3). Rules have been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553 (b), (c) and (e) and have been published in the Federal Register.
